

BAYA Book Review Guidelines

Members review current or recently published books that appeal to young adults between the ages 13 to 18 years. The reviews are written for a specific audience: public or school librarians, publishers, educators, and people who are interested in young adult literature. Besides giving a brief outline of the book's content, reviewers attempt to convey the flavor of the book, its interest or appeal to young adults, its use with young adults, its place in relation to other books in a particular field, and its quality or lack thereof. Since many librarians depend on reviews to purchase materials, BAYA reviews must advise the reader of language, ideas or sexual content that may bring up censorship issues. Please remain as objective as possible while rendering an opinion valuable to the group and audience.

One third of your book review should cover the plot or content; two thirds should be a critical evaluation of the book.
